But Improv Everywhere is more than just a group of pranksters. They are also artists, activists, and social commentators. Their pranks often challenge social norms, raise awareness for important issues, and bring people together in a shared experience of joy.

In their new book, "Extraordinary Pranks in Ordinary Places," Improv Everywhere shares the secrets behind their most outrageous and successful pranks. They also provide a behind-the-scenes look at the creative process, the challenges they face, and the impact their pranks have had on the world.

Whether you're a fan of Improv Everywhere or simply looking for a good laugh, "Extraordinary Pranks in Ordinary Places" is a must-read. It's a celebration of creativity, humor, and the power of laughter to change the world.

Here's a closer look at some of the extraordinary pranks featured in the book:

- Frozen Grand Central: In 2008, Improv Everywhere staged one of their most iconic pranks at Grand Central Station. Hundreds of people froze in place, creating a surreal and hilarious tableau that stopped commuters in their tracks.
- Subway Car Takeover: In 2011, Improv Everywhere transformed an entire subway car into a dance party. Complete with music, costumes, and even a conga line, the prank brought joy and laughter to everyone on board.
- The Human Tetris: In 2013, Improv Everywhere created a human version of Tetris in Times Square. Using cardboard boxes and colorful costumes, they recreated the classic video game in real life.
- The Department of Slow: In 2015, Improv Everywhere launched the Department of Slow, a fake government agency dedicated to slowing down the pace of life. They staged a series of pranks that encouraged people to take their time and enjoy the little things.

- The March of the Penguins: In 2017, Improv Everywhere organized March of the Penguins, a mass performance in which hundreds of performers, dressed in penguin costumes, marched down the streets of New York City.

These are just a few of the many extraordinary pranks that Improv Everywhere has staged over the years. Their pranks have been featured in countless media outlets, including The New York Times, The Tonight Show, and Good Morning America. They have also won numerous awards, including the Webby Award for Best Viral Video and the Shorty Award for Best in Comedy.
