

Spokane Expo '74: A Photographic Journey Through Modern America

In the summer of 1974, the city of Spokane, Washington played host to one of the most ambitious and successful World's Fairs in history. Spokane Expo '74 was a six-month extravaganza that celebrated the nation's bicentennial and showcased the latest advancements in technology, industry, and culture.

Over 5 million people visited Spokane Expo '74, and they were treated to a truly unforgettable experience. The fairgrounds were a wonderland of pavilions, exhibits, and attractions, all designed to entertain and educate visitors. There were also countless live performances, parades, and special events.

Spokane Expo '74 was a watershed moment for the city of Spokane. It put the city on the map and helped to revitalize its downtown core. The fair also left a lasting legacy of cultural and educational institutions, including the Spokane Convention Center and the Riverfront Park.
